Notes From the Director

You don't have to have a time-travel machine, to visit to visit the future; all you have to do is go to the past. Our century had its own prophets (we call them "artists"), who saw the future (i.e. our PRESENT) in their dreams. They called themselves "futurists" because they believed that tomorrow is always better than yesterday (don't you think so?). They worshipped speed and cars, bridges and skyscrapers, airplanes and electricity (don't we all?). Then came World War I with all the wonders of technology. You know the story. The Dada movement is considered to be a nihilistic reaction, but maybe it's just a sober look at what progress does offer us. And it does it with a smile.

Our show is a collaborative effort, free in style, eclectic and improvisational. Actors and directors should learn how to be free. Non-realistic frame of mind gives you this freedom from logic and restrictions. And you know, in the land beyond the "normal" there are many things to learn and enjoy. If you think that TV show "about nothing" (Jerry Seinfeld) has no roots in its appeal, come to see where it came from. If you are tired of news and politics which make no sense, welcome to the world where paradox has a right to exist, where you can live with contradictions and unsolved mysteries. Do you know why we laugh? Because it's life and we have to live it through.

About the Cast and Crew

Angela Brownfield is a senior theatre major at UAF. Fresh from directing "Laughter on the 23rd Floor", she's trying something a little more weird. Purple tomatoes live orange existences.

Tracy Campbell is a senior Theatre Major. She has appeared in many UAF productions including "70 Scenes of Halloween" (the witch), "Magic Flute", "Lunch With Ginger" (Ginger), "Runaways", and "A Phoenix too Frequent". She really likes water and singing.

Njideka Chukwu. This is Njikedka's first acting opportunity. Just started taking acting classes, Njikedka has been having a fun experience, and hopes there will be more opportunities like this in the future - enjoy the show!

Dain A. Geist is a freshman Theatre / History major. He was last seen in "Laughter on the 23rd Floor" as Val Skolsky. He smokes too much, and drinks too little, but his love-life isn't that bad...

Brett Good is a Senior Theatre Major at UAF. The secret of the Universe is hidden in his thumbnail.

Christopher G. Jones is an undecided major, but hopes to one day sharpen a pencil. He would, however, like to thank His Lord and Savior Jesus Christ for all he has done in his life.

Mike Karoly has acted badly. He dedicates this performance to all the nasty ladies.

Lily Simmons is a freshman Theatre Major at UAF, and has performed in "West Side Story", "Music Man" and many children's ballets with the North Star Ballet. This is her first improvisational play.

B.S. Thompson first year theatre major. Last big acting job was 5 years in the U.S. Navy pretending like he was an actual sailor. And yes, his eyes are brown too!

David A. Valdez full time student, computer science major, marketing minor, theatre / thespian wanna be.

Diana Williams is the President of the Student Drama Association and a Junior Theatre Major at UAF. She has been in over ten shows in the last two years, and has managed to haunt the theatre with gallons of blood. Diana has been Martha in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf", Pooty in "Reckless" and Death in "The Grand Tarot" among others. For more information about the "Pink House" call 474-5950.
