Funny, I thought we'd discussed it too, but I couldn't find any e-mail about it. If you think so and I think so, it must be so. I'll check on it. Jennie indigenous communities in Alaska and the circumpolar North through degree programs that promote academic excellence, personal development, professional skills, global awareness, respect for indigenous cultures and commitment to community. We seek to include a keen awareness of the scope, richness, and variety of Alaska Native cultural heritages, and a series of critical perspectives on the historical and the contemporary indigenous experience for all our

ANS 111 COURSE SCHEDULE

Spring 2017

WEEK ONE INTRODUCTIONS AND REVIEW OF COURSE REQUIREMENTS

WEEK FOUR In week four we move to the period from 1804 to 1867 and start to look at the Russians and their activities in Alaska before the Treaty of Cession. Why did they come, what did they do? How were Alaska Natives affected by their presence and how did they participate? We will also continue to compare what was happening with tribes in the Lower 48, noticing that the treaty making period of federal Indian policy ended just four years after the Russian American Treaty of Cession.

IN CLASS PRESENTATIONS: CHECK BLACKBOARD ASSIGNMENT

WEEK FOURTEEN What has happened in Alaska since the passage the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act in 1971? Has any meaningful decolonization taken place and, if so, what does that look like? What aspects of federal Indian policy show up in ANCSA? When you read Windows to the Land, Chapter 21, you will hear the words of a strong Native leader who was centrally involved in the Land Claims and who participated actively in Alaskan governance and politics in the years that followed and where he thinks
